

THE SURPRISED POPULIST

Who subscribed for Benito and was proud of his country, who upon his wife's teaching him a lesson.

"We get them," said the Populist friend, as he came blithely up the gravel walk that leads to the front porch of his cozy country home.

His wife did not look up.

"I tell you," he continued, "it does me as much good, this time, to subscribe my mite to the government loan as it did to go to the front myself, thirty odd years ago."

Still no response from the little woman rocking on the porch.

"What a glorious war this has been," and he grew enthusiastic. "What a nation we are. Think of it! I say," he fairly shrieked to the unsmiling lady in the chair. "When Spain was trying to borrow a few millions to patch up her dilapidated old navy, Uncle Sam shoved his hands down in his pocket, pulled out fifty millions in cold cash, handed it over to McKinley, and said, 'Get ready. McKinley got. Gun factories going, powder factories going, men and boys going here and there, camping, drilling, going to the front. Dewey at Manila, whizz. One-third of the Spanish navy at the bottom of the sea; Sampson and Schley at Santiago, whoop! The pride of the Spanish navy, full of holes and burning on the beach; the boys in Cuba, 55,000 Spanish fighters surrender to them. Porto Rico captured without a struggle. It's great. It makes me feel like celebrating. More money wanted; did we have to go to Europe for it?"

He paused for a reply, which did not come, and then he proceeded.

"No, we didn't, not a bit of it. We didn't have to go anywhere. The people just said: 'Here it is, six times over, if you want it. We get our share of the bonds; it makes me feel good,' and he strutted back and forth, seeming to imitate the walk of the proud peacock, not far off, but the woman said nothing.

"But that isn't all. Think of us commercially. What do you think of making Europe and other lands fork over $600,000,000 in clean cash for the difference due us in the bonds of the past year? Aren't we somebody, though?"

Then her lips moved. She spoke, her voice as deep and as solemn as she could make it; her eyelashes not lifted; her features expressionless. He listened to the words:

"We meet in the midst of a Nation brought to the verge of moral, political and material ruin. A voice from the tomb it sounded to him.

At first my Populist friend seemed stunned; then he was angry. His arms flew in the air, his jaw moved, and his whiskers beat the wind, but so enraged was he that he could not utter a word. Finally in despair, he sat down upon the porch steps and buried his face in his hands.

"Cruel, I know it is cruel," said the little woman, in her softest, meekest voice, "but that is one of the first phrases in the national platform of your great Populist party. That was the belief in those conditions that brought you party into existence. Think of it, what a libel on a great and good people. What are you going to do with that declaration of ruin, anyhow? Why not frame it, and send it to Spain? I don't know of any one else who could get any satisfaction out of it; but in the light of historic events would be a difficult task to get even her to believe it."

"But that was six long years ago," plaintively pleaded my Populist friend.

"But you are still following the trail onto which that famous declaration led you; and that is what hurts me," she answered impatiently. "Think of it, yourself; think of it. Can a great and growing nation make a complete change in morals in six years? When there was more evidence that Divine Providence was guiding this nation than at this time? Think of our war for humanity; think of Dewey and Manila; think of Santiago; think of Spain's navy practically ruined, and but one man of ours killed in doing it. Would the hand of Divine Providence be so wicked and depraved people wage such a war for humanity as ours has waged?"

"Financial ruin, too. Think of that. All those millions of dollars are being loaned to the government by the people, plain, hard-working people, such as you. And you say in your great national platform that we are on the verge of ruin. How dare you look truth in the face, and follow the footsteps of the party which uttered that libel?"

"Material ruin." Yes, the difference in our trade with nations of the world was more than $600,000,000 in our favor, but, great as it is, that is only a small part of our internal growth. England's most reliable statistician now asserts that we have become the richest nation on the face of the globe, and he furnishes figures to prove it. Yet you declare that we are on the verge of ruin. To topple over in six years, I say, and that makes you always bring that up," said my Populist friend somewhat defiantly. "Take our later acts; we were a new party then."

The mischievous smile began to play about the lips of the good wife, as she said: "Very well, you are right, then. Out in the barn lot, in a banner which suggested about in one of your 'reform' parades about two years ago. It reads:

A Vote for McKinley Means

25 Cents a Bushel for Wheat And 10 Cents a Bushel for Corn.

"How much will you charge to carry that to town now?"

My Populist friend was hurt. Would that banner, the ghost of a banner never drawn? Hadn't the men in town made life miserable to him, and hadn't they silenced his arguments by reminding of it, and now it must be brought to his very threshold? Had the really thoughtful wife known how the folly of her husband had been so loudly sounded in the political predictions of demagogic reformers, I believe she would have pitied him rather than twitted him of his more recent folly. But she was kind, even in her seeming cruelty, for he persisted in her seeming cruelty, for he persisted in bringing that folly. Her motive was to bring him back in the paths of political rectitude.

THE MEANT BUSINESS.

A West Virginia Girl's Method of Stopping Annoying Attention.

New York dispatch: A slender girl of twenty, who was in deep mourning, walked into the mayor's office yesterday and said to Roundman Kennel:

"I would like to get a permit to carry a pistol."

Roundman Kennel told the girl it was not usual to issue such permits from the mayor's office, and he asked her why she made the request. She told him that the elevator man in the building in which she was employed had annoyed her on various occasions, and that she was determined to put a stop to it.

It was afterward found that the young woman was Clara A. Reid, of 52 Perry street. She is a member of the Cooper Union Woman's Art Association, and had been studying art in this city for some time. She came here from West Virginia, and she is said to be the widow of a man who was killed in the war. Recently she got employment with the firm of Sigmund Langsdorf & Co., of 568 Broadway.

The girl was very much excited when she was in the city hall. Roundman Kennel told her to apply at police headquarters for the permit which she sought.

ARMY PROMOTIONS.

Commanding Officers Requested to Send in Names of Worthy Men.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The war department has issued an order directing the commanding officers of military departments, army corps and detached commands to send to the adjutant general as soon as possible the names of such officers, both in the regular and volunteer service as may be considered entitled to brevet commissions for "distinguished conduct and public service in the presence of the enemy."

Rules have also been issued governing the award of medals to officers and enlisted men as follows:

Medals of honor will not be awarded to officers or enlisted men except for distinguished bravery or meritorious gallantry, which shall have been manifested in action by conduct that distinguishes a soldier above his comrades, and that involves risk of life, or the performance of more than ordinary hazardous duty. Recommendations for the award will be governed by this interpretation of extraordinary merit.

Recommendations should be made by the officer in command at the time of the "action," or by an officer having personal cognizance of the act for which the medal is granted. The recommendation must be accompanied by a detailed recital of the circumstances, and by certificates of officers, or affidavits of enlisted men who were eye witnesses of the act.

Recommendations must, when practicable, embrace that of at least two eye witnesses and must describe specifically the act or acts by which the person in whose behalf the recommendation is made "most distinguished himself," and the facts in the case must be further attested by the official reports of the action, record of events, muster roll and returns and descriptive lists.

FINANCE AND TRADE

The Features of the Money and Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Money on call firm at 3/4 per cent; last loan 3 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 4 1/2 per cent. Sterling exchange heavy, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4 3/4 @ $4 5/4 for demand, and at $4 3/4 @ $4 3/4 for sixty days; posted rates $4 3/4 @ $4 5/4; commercial bills $4 1/2 @ $4 3/4. Bar silver 50 1/2 c. Mexican dollars 45 c.

There was a continuation of apparently urgent liquidation on the stock exchange this morning, caused by covering of short stock, which speedily wiped out the recoveries of Saturday, and carried prices sharply below the lowest level of last Friday for all standard stocks. But the pressure of liquidation seemed to be relieved by noon, and there was a disposition to pick stocks quietly, and to accord support to the weak spots, notably St. Paul. The dealing in odd lots of some of the standard dividend payers also became quite a feature, indicating a supply of money for investment, and a confidence in the value of the local call money market. Speculation in some of the industrial specialties caused the market to ease off again before the close, but last prices of the railroads were in many cases at sharp recoveries from the lowest. Nevertheless, marked losses resulted from the day's trading, owing to the severity of the previous day's work. There was continued apprehension over the outlook for money, but the government crop report and the snow storms in the west were also material factors. The crop report, though bearish on the corn crop, as a whole showed sharp deterioration for Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa. This, coupled with snow storms in the corn belt, and a very clearly indicated in the weakness of Rock Island, Burlington and Union Pacific. There was no actual development to account for a decline of apprehension over the money market outlook, and how far this feeling was connected with a reported conference of leading bankers is not certain. There is a growth of conviction that there is a large available supply of money outside of New York City. Money rates are easy at interior points, and there is even buying of commercial paper in the New York market by western banks. It is quite possible, also, that a larger amount of the new government three per cent bonds, which are being sold for purposes of circulation and as security for government deposits in the banks than has yet been the case, in the event of any real stringency of money. Nevertheless the drain of cash from the banks to the sub-treasury, on account of subscriptions to the loan continues, and the sub-treasury was even a creditor at the clearing house to-day.

Recommendations of drafts from interior depository banks, in which government deposits have exceeded their security by reason of heavy internal revenue collections. There were rumors all day of engagements of gold for import, but none of these were confirmed.

The easier tone of the money market and the consequent recovery in the stock market were apparently due to other causes. The larger demand for wheat and the evidence of underlying strength in the wheat market, in the face of the bearish government crop report, had some influence in the stock market.

The bond market was dull, and showed some weakness, in sympathy with stocks. Total sales $1,670,000.

United States 2's advanced 1/2 per cent and the old 4's registered 1/2 per cent in the bid price.

Evening Post's London financial cablegram:

The stock markets here were generally dull to-day, on the Austrian news on the report of French occupation of Fashoda, and on a telegram stating that the Chilean government had called out 5,000 men of the national guard. The collapse of Argentine stocks was particularly marked. Consols also were slower.

Americans opened flat, turned weaker on the news here and closed at about the lowest on the continuance of New York. Later business was assisted by heavy purchases by Paris and the Cape.

The total sales of stocks to-day, were 379,800 shares.
